The fact the opinion is growing that the ad-istration's policy on this subject is not nistration's policy on this subject is not pular in the country at large. Its determination to force through anti-trust bills at this session, even the cost of holding Congress here it fall, is the subject of divided commit. Some democrats hold that to andon trust legislation now would be arm Roosevelt. Others fear that the s will react to the detriment of instry.

The latter view arises from uncertainty in many minds as to the practical effect of the proposed legislation. In point of fact, many democrats are dubious on this score: it is not plain how deep the new law may strike. Many of them reit will hurt business and hamper de Steel Men Notified of Increased Rate on Slag and Waste.

PITTSBURGH, June 3 .- Steel manu facturers were today notified by rall roads in the Pittsburgh and Youngstown districts that beginning June 15 a new tariff would be filed with the interstate commerce commission governing the transportation of slag and other waste material from furnaces and mills. While the new rate has not been made public steel men believe it will be 20 cents for slag and 35 cents for excavating material and other waste. The increase, it is estimated, will add $2,000,000 annually to transportation charges. Heretofore the cost has been nominal, railroads being glad to secure slag for ballasting. This, however, has been growing less each year for a number of years, and the disposal of the vast quantity of slag accumulated every day is becoming a serious problem. other waste material from furnaces and flag in the war with Spain electrified the north, and when that war was over President McKinley, who had himself been a gallant Union soldier, made a speech at Atlanta, December 21, 1898, that touched the heart of the south as it never had been touched before. In it he said:

"Sectional lines no longer mar the map of the United States, sectional feeling no longer holds back the love we bear each other. Fraternity is the national anthem, sung by a chorus of forty-five states and our territories at home and beyond the seas. The old flag once again waves over us in peace with new glories which your sons and ours have this year added to its sacred folds.

"And the time has now come, in the evolution of public sentiment and feeling under the Providence of God, when in the spirit of fraternity we should share with you in the care of the graves of Confederate soldiers."

In their annual reunion at Charleston in 1899 the United Confederate Veterans thanked the President for his utterances at Atlanta.

PLEA OF FEDERALS REJECTED BY COURT

Permanently Enjoins Cincinnati Ball Player From Jumping to Kansas City.

UPHOLDS THE VALIDITY OF "TEN-DAY CLAUSE"

Victory for National League in Controversy Over Possession of Pitcher George H .Johnson.

CHICAGO, June 3.-Judge Foell in he supreme court of Cook county tolay sustained the infunction obtained by the Cincinnati club, April 23, restraining "Chief" Johnson from pitchng for any team except the Cincinnat Nationals, and by his decision stopped what threatened to be the most extensive raid on organized ball ever made. Scores of players, including a dozen or more stars, were ready to 'jump" to the outlaw league at the word that Johnson's case had been de-cided in favor of the Kansas City Federals whom he joined after deserting Contracts, it is said, had already been signed depending only on the contingency that the pitcher's "jump" would be held legal. The injunction, of course, restrained

Johnson from playing only within the state of Illinois, but while he could havoe pitched in games outside, the Kansas City club declined to let him rather than take a chance on prerather than take a chance on prejudicing his case.

The Kansas City club prayed for dissolution of the injunction, arging that the contract Johnson signed with Cincinnati was invalid because of the "ten-day clause," and that a "negative covenant," forcing a player to perform only for the team with which he has contract, cannot be enforced in law.

Judge Foell, at the request of the Federal League, granted an appeal and twenty days for filing the certificate of evidence.

twenty days for filing the certificate of evidence.

In his decision the court said:
"The testimony shows that with few exceptions section seven, referring to the ten-day clause cited in the contract in question, is practically the same as that contained in practically every base ball contract entered into between the players and the principal clubs of the country during the last twenty years or more.

"It seems improbable that the many members constituting the great fraternity of base ball players should have, for a score or more years, voluntarily signed such contracts if the practical effect of the clause resulted in the infliction of an unconscionable hardship on the players. Under the evidence in this case and the rule laid down in the authorities the court is of the opinion that the contract court is of the opinion that the contract ng question here is not void because of section seven thereof."

Points Raised in Case.

our points raised in the case: 1-That Johnson was induced to sign with the Cincinnati club by false repre

2-That the seventh section referring t from playing with any team other than the one contracted with during the life of the contract, cannot be enforced in

After reviewing the history of the case After reviewing the history of the case the court took up these points in order. In regard to the first point concerning the alleged fraudulent representations made to Johnson regarding the ability of the Federal League to fulfill a contract, the court held that nothing had been given

"Ten-Day Clause" Considered.

In considering the ten-day clause Judge Foell printed out that Johnson signed the contract after working under a simi lar one the last year at a much lower salary and that the clause in substance appears in almost every base ball con tract signed in the United States, and that tract signed in the United States, and that it is hard to believe players would repeatedly sign contracts which they considered unfair.

The court held that it was impossible for the complainant to recover in a suit for damages, inasmuch as specific performance will not be enforced in the courts. Considering this contention of the defendant the court indicated that courts. Considering this contention of the defendant, the court indicated that in the answer Johnson did not deny the peculiar nature of his services as set forth in the bill for injunction and that in fact the complainant has been unable to replace him, although it has offered a arge bonus besides the salary to secure a pitcher. The contention of the defendant that a "negative covenant" cannot be enforced in law was the strongest point brought forward in the hearing of the case for the dissolution of the temporary injunction, numerous cases being cited in its support, the court said.

Held Not to Apply.

Most of these cases Judge Foell held not to be in point for the reason that where specific performance will not be enforced by the courts relief will be granted to the complainant in a suit where a "negative covenant" is expressed or implied. In this case the "negative covenant" is implied, the court held, as covenant" is implied, the court held, as the player will play for no other party during the period of his contract.

The court pointed out that in paying Johnson $500 advance salary, in fining him $150, and by other acts, the complainant had shown every indication of an intent to carry out its part of the contract. CHICAGO, June 3.—Federal League headquarters here received word yesterday that the United States court at Cincinnati had set September 10 as the date for the hearing of the Killifer case between the Philadelphia Nationals and the Chicago Federals.

The Mexican constitution stands in the way of this arrangement in that it provides that a provisional president, fifteen days after his inauguration, shall convoke elections to take place three moths later. It is expected by the Mexicans that this difficulty could be abridged by a constitutional amendmont. There will be elections in the
